

Concordance of Previously Published Translations and Versions (From The Quatrains of Rumi, by Ibrahim Gamard and Rawan Farhadi, new edition, 2023)

This appendix can be used by the reader to compare the translations in this book with the English translations and versions of Mawlānā's quatrains in previously published books that the reader owns or has access (please see the first part of the Bibliography, 'Works Including Quatrains By or Attributed to Mawlānā Rūmī '). The Concordance is a compilation of quatrains in 52 books.

For example, the reader who has the popular volume of versions, The Essential Rumi, can look for references to quatrains in 'ER,' as in: 'F-81/FG-1263: ... Barks-Moyne OS p. 7b [ER p. 36, IR p. 31] (Isf 82)'. This particular version can be found on p. 36 of 'ER' (beginning, 'Today, like every other day, we wake up empty'); it can be compared with the translation in the present book that has the Farhādī-Gamard number 1263. It can also be compared with the other translations and versions listed for this quatrain in the Concordance citation. The following are all the available renderings in the English language of the second half of this particular quatrain:

F-81/FG-1263:

Gamard-Farhadi: "Today, like every day, we are ruined, ruined (by wine)./ Don't open the door of worry (or thinking) and take up the viol (instead)./ There are a hundred kinds of prayer [namāz], bowing [rukū'], and prostration [sujūd]/ For the one whose prayer-niche is the beauty of the Beloved [jamāl-é dōst]." Osborne: "Today, like every other day, we are wasted – wasted!/ Do not open the door to thought – just take up the rebec!/ There are a hundred different ways to pray, bow and prostrate/ for the one whose prayer niche is the friend's beauty." Lewis: "Today, like every day, we're shot, just shot/ But do not think too hard—get the rabāb/ He whose prayer niche is the Beauty of the Friend/ knows a hundred ways to pray, prostrate, and bow" Saberi: "Today like everyday, I am drunk, so drunk./ Do not open the door of thinking. Pick up the rebeck. He whose mehrāb is the Friend's Face, stands, bends, and prostrates in many prayers." Khalili: "Today like everyday I'm in no sober mood/ don't open the door to my thoughts—begin the music instead/ for the one who sees only the beloved's face/ there a hundred ways to pray, to prostrate or to be humbled to the ground" Mafi-Kolin: "Today, amazed and bewildered/ I have shut the door on thought and turned to music/ There are a hundred ways to kneel and pray/ at the altar of the Beloved" Barks-Moyne: "Today, like every other day, we wake up empty and frightened. Don't open the door to the study and begin reading. Take down the dulcimer./ Let the beauty we love be what we do. There are hundreds of ways to kneel and kiss the ground." Ergin-Gölpınarlı: "We are desperately in love today like everyday;/ don't open the door of thoughts. Play the rebab whose sound makes us forget everything./ There are a hundred different prayers/ to the one whose mihrab—altar—is the face of the Beloved." Algan-Wright: "Today we are ruined and worn out like everyday/ —especially do not open the door of thinking/ but take the rebab in your hand!/ For whom the cemal of the Beloved is a mihrap/ he has a hundred ways of namaz, niyaz, rükû and secde."
